Precious Hubby Love: —

Dear, I received your gifts, just as I was about to close my letter to you yesterday. The Rev. in charge of the mail, brought one himself, and at the same time, Carrie came in to see me. So everything was excitement and I cannot hardly express to you what a wonderful choice you made in the selection of my gifts, both of which, dear, are lovely. I thank you for them, hubby, dear. The camera is just the thing as I will now be able to snap pictures of all the people I care for before I leave for Smith. The locket, hubby, is beautiful, + I am going to please onto it your picture taken in the uniform until I get down & snap one of you. The engraving dear, is handsome.

and the date on it, is so pretty. I must say look, you sure did display nice taste in the selection of my gifts. Thank you lovey dear, so much and when I come down precious I get you, along with the rest, the kiss that you deserve for everything. That card book, is quite the handsomest I have seen - you are a dear hubby.

Listen, honey, I spoke to Mom about the trunk and she thinks it best for you not to bother sending it. It will not be large enough for everything so Mom says it is much better to ship everything in a large case. If you have already sent it, wait honey until you hear from me about it. What do you think about it?

Rose & Jack walked last night. We got the pictures for Zeidel's passport. They turned out very well. Now, Mom is waiting to receive that affidavit from you, and if she can arrange it, with go downtown Monday, as Tuesday is a holiday here, owing to the big parade of the returned 29th Div. If your affidavit does not come on time, it will have to wait until Wednesday. They received home from England, affidavits as to Zeidel's burial ground in England, and hope, all this will bring about the much desired passport.

Just received a handsome card from Rose, it sure is a beauty and one from Sadie Englander. Wasn't that nice of them?

Will be on duty tomorrow. Asked Carrie if she had nothing else to do, to come down

I spend the afternoon with me. She promised me she would, and if she does come, I'd like to take a bus ride (on the top) along Ocean Ave. The weather is simply wonderful now, and it would be quite a treat for me. And remember, precious, those kisses you promised with me. I'll not forget that promise.

If as are possible, I'll write you ~~a~~ long letter to-morrow (Sunday), if not, Monday, sure. Just received dear your long letter and am going to settle myself down to read it.

With all my love, hugs, and kisses to my precious, darling hubby. 5½ weeks more love, till I start, then!

Everlovingly
Your Wifie
